TO-DAY'S DISPATCHES.

THE CREW OF THE SCHOONER DYER SET FREE.

The People of San Francisco Cannot Have Chinatown Removed—A Lot of Machinery Purchased for Constructing the Nicaragua Canal

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 24.—News was received here from Ounalaska to-day that Capt. Healy, of the revenue cutter Bear, had ordered the release of officers of the seized sealer Mattie Dyer, and ordered the vessel to proceed to Sitka, where the case will be heard.

Contrary to Constitution.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—United States Circuit Judge Sawyer to-day decided that the Bingham ordinance, which provides for the removal of Chinatown outside of the limits of San Francisco, is invalid. The judge holds that it is contrary to the constitution and statutes of the United States and our treaty with China.

A Necessary Amendment.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26.—Representative Quinn of New York introduced the following resolution in the House to-day: Resolved that the Committee on judiciary be instructed to inquire and report by bill or otherwise what legislation within the province of the Federal Government may be proper and necessary to prevent corporations engaged in interstate commerce traffic from employing unjustifiable large bodies of armed men, denominated detectives, but clothed with no legal functions. The employment of such so-called detectives operating, as at the city of Albany and other places. The lives of peaceful and unoffending citizens at the mercy of persons acting without legal authority, direction or responsibility, and to the great injury and detention of interstate commerce.

Panama Dredges for Nicaragua.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Private advices have been received here from Washington, saying that the Nicaragua Canal Construction Company has purchased the Slavin outfit at Colon, consisting of seven dredges, fifteen lighters and a quantity of tools, machinery and supplies. These will be removed at once to Greytown. This Government under the present administration being in full sympathy with the canal enterprise, has sent the Kearsarge to Colon to stand guard during the transfer and removal of the dredges and other property. Chief Engineer Menocal is now at Greytown, and will superintend the work with Slavin's great dredges. At headquarters of the Central American Improvement Company in this city the officers are sanguine of securing contracts for digging the western section of the canal. They have had engineers inspect the ground, and will be able to put in a close bid. The work is soon to be begun also on the railway that parallels the canal.

To Work the System.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—At a meeting of the council of Knights of Labor to-day, a committee was appointed to solicit funds for the aid of the New York Central strikers. Resolutions were also unanimously adopted demanding that Congress shall immediately authorize and instruct the Secretary of war to sieze the Vanderbilt system and operate the same at the cost of said service for the benefit and pleasure of the public.

Count a la Mode.

LONDON, Aug. 26.—A letter from Honolulu reports that Count Zsechenyi has been murdered and eaten by his servants in the South Sea islands.

A Fatal Fire.

SUNDRIDGE, Ont., Aug. 26.—The Queen's hotel here was burned this morning. The guests, of which there were a large number, had great difficulty in escaping. As it was Thomas Powers and Herbert Layton, the latter from Ottawa, were burned to death. Arthur Bowyear cut his hands and was slightly burned; J. McGuire, news agent, badly burned on the face. Loss not estimated.

European Gossip.

LONDON, Aug. 25.—A circular, which is regarded as important, has been issued by the Dublin Castle authorities, in which careful instructions as to the use of firearms by officers are given. Orders are given to the officers expressly against shooting, except in cases of the most pronounced necessity. The Pall Mall Gazette expressed the belief that the circular is evidence that a general election is not far off, as the instructions which it contains could hardly have been given in contemplation of any other event.

The consensus of opinion as voiced through the European press, is that the visit of Emperor William to St. Petersburg has not changed the political situation. Indications favor peace, but this was the case before the Imperial visit was made.

The German Government powder mills in Spandau are steadily reducing their output after having run for some time to their full capacity. A large number of workmen were recently discharged and another hundred have just been dismissed.

An Unprovoked Murder.

DETROIT, Aug. 24.—Anthony Menil, an Italian fruit vender, shot and fatally wounded Jacob Crimmins, assistant city editor of the Sun, on the corner of Crogan and Randolph streets to-night, because he suspected Crimmins of taking one more plum than he paid for. He accused Crimmins of the theft, and when the other laughingly denied it, drew a revolver and placing it within four inches of Crimmins' groin, fired. Crimmins fell to the pavement and the Italian fled, but was caught within ten minutes. Crimmins was a member of the the Detroit bar before he took up newspaper work. The Italian bears a bad reputation, having been obliged to flee from Ann Arbor four years ago for stabbing a man. A crowd collected and would have lynched him had they been able to get him before the police locked him up.

SOCIALISM GROWING.

The Atmosphere of England Permeated With Socialistic Ideas.

[illegible], Aug. 26.—John Swinton, the well-known labor reformer, now traveling in Europe, will return to the United States by the steamer Nevada, which leaves Liverpool on the 23rd inst. Writing from the English metropolis to a friend in Boston, he communicates some interesting facts regarding the spread of the socialistic spirit in Great Britain. "I find," he says, "that the British atmosphere is becoming permeated with socialism in a way that I had no conception of before coming here. I have found their ideas especially strong in Glasgow and Edinburgh. I have heard them discussed in all kinds of society. I find them fairly treated in many of the great daily papers, and one of the two dailies here often publishes editorials about them which could not be got into any daily paper in the United States. Right opposite the old university here there is a big sign, 'Social Democratic Federation,' and it marks the head quarters of that body, which I have not yet been able to visit. The party holds open air Sunday meetings in the fields and on the outskirts of the city. There are also measures before parliament that we would call socialistic, and they get a fair show there. In fact, it seems to me that in respect to business for the benefit of the workers, the British are in in many respects far, far ahead of us. If the lands could be torn from the hands of the aristocratic thieves, and even that is talked of, then you would see great changes here. I have spoken with barbers and butchers, merchants and millionaires, editors and lawyers, and many of them spoke such words as I have never heard from their brethren in America.

A STRANGE DISEASE.

Alaskan Fishermen Afflicted With Blood Poisoning by Handling Fish.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26.—Among the arrivals from Alaska recently is a fisherman who has been employed for some months at Bristol Bay. A number of canneries are located along the river and about 200 fishermen are engaged in salmon fishing there. The fish are caught in large nets, from which they are removed by hand. Lately, after this work many men have been attacked in the hand and arm by blood-poisoning. The hand and arm increased to a horrible size and took on a leaden hue. Then the swelling commenced to subside, when running sores broke through the skin, and in effect the arm was more than half paralyzed. The swelling was accompanied by dull pains in the head with falling away of strength and complete exhaustion. The sufferers multiplied rapidly until nearly one-half of the fishermen were down. No deaths resulted to the knowledge of the narrator, but no complete cures were effected. When the swelling subsided, the sores continued in a more or less active state. The trouble created a panic among the fishers and they commenced to forsake their work. There was no doctor nearer than Ounalaska, and bandages and poultices helped little to ease the pains of the sufferers. The case is a novel one in medical science. In handling salmon it very often happens that the hard, sharp fins and scales slightly puncture the skin. It has never been known before, however, that blood-poisoning of the strange kind described has resulted.

A SOUTH SEA EMUTE.

Cannibal Islanders Murder Men and Are Punished for It.

MELBOURNE, Aug. 25.—News has just been received here from New Hebrides Islands of the disastrous result of an attempt on the part of the commodore of a German vessel to secure native laborers to work on the docks at Sydney, where the shipping is all tied up and commerce paralyzed by the strike of the stevedores and ship crews.

The German commodore anchored off the island of Ambrima, whose inhabitants are warlike savages, and went ashore with his crew to negotiate with the chiefs for a large gang of men. Whether or not he attempted to seize some of the natives and take them aboard is unknown, but for some reason the natives became suspicious of his intentions and taking the captain and his sailors by surprise, made a sudden attack upon them in the night and killed all who were ashore. The mate and part of the crew remaining on board the ship learned in the morning what had happened and to escape from the natives who were apparently intending to attack the ship, made sail and stood off from the island.

A day or two later they spoke a French war vessel and informed the commodore of the massacre. The French captain laid his course for Ambrima and when within short range of the shore opened fire on the village of the natives.

The Frenchman shelled every collection of huts on the islands, killing a great many of the inhabitants, who were too terrified for some time by the bursting of shells to do more than rush about in an aimless panic. After a great deal of damage had been done, the natives fled from their villages and sought refuge upon a volcanic mountain in the center of the island, where they were safe from the Frenchman's fire. The French commodore continued bombarding until scarcely a vestige of a hut remained, but did not land any men to pursue the fugitive natives.

THE CHAIRMAN'S REMARKS.

The chairman then pointed out that it would be necessary to appoint a secretary and that the party selected be a member of convention. On motion Mr J. M. O'Brien was elected to the position.

The chairman then explained the work that the meeting had been called upon to do. It was to elect three representatives to council in accordance with the statutory. Adverting to the criticisms in the press of the act, which he seemed to deplore, the speaker pointed out that the first move had been made by several citizens of Victoria, some, of whom with the assistance of two lawyers, had framed the bill which, for the sake of convenience, was brought before the House, as a Government measure, but the Government had disclaimed all responsibility in the matter. The bill was said to be imperfect, but when it was considered that it formed the first important step in the matter, the framers and movers should be thanked by the public. It was not to be expected that the first measure would be perfect [illegible] be amended to meet the [illegible] the case. He reverted [illegible]

THE PICTURESQUE BRIDESMAID.

The fashionable wedding of today has become a pageant of picturesqueness, in which the bridal procession is a glittering array of gay colors and historical costumes. The bridesmaids in dresses of the first empire or the directoire style, and the tiny pages in court dress of the time of Louis XIV alternate, and vie with the bride's procession of flower girls, who are attended by Little Lord Fauntleroys. It may be that the fair bride has chosen to go into the church [illegible] by a body of fair maidens who are arrayed in the lilies of the rainbow, and shining in red, yellow and blue.

Others again are preceded in their passage down the aisle by a seeming flock of snowbirds, in their frocks of white silk, trimmed with white fox furs and silver braid. Another bride will choose a bevy of fair maids who shall dress in gowns of golden yellow, carry bunches of yellow chrysanthemums or roses, and altogether lend a gleam of sunshine to even a rainy wedding day; while one bride is recorded as having clothed her maids in wedding garments of dust colored broche figured with pink and red roses, and hats of dust colored felt hidden beneath claret tipped plumes crowned their pretty heads, while tiny pages dressed in ruby plush danced gayly along.

Formerly the bridesmaids, like the bride, were "clad in robes of shining white," and their beauty and elaborate array were supposed to be to her as the pale beauty of the moon to the radiance of the sun, as the modesty of the violet to the elegance of the rose, as the limpidness of water to the richness of ruby wine; nowadays, the bride, the central figure round which clusters all the love and joy and hope that a wedding ring can hold—the bride is apt to be in her conventional wedding gown, the fashion for which varies but little from year to year, though she may substitute roses, hyacinths, chrysanthemums or lilies of the valley for the old time favorite, the orange blossom and flower, is somewhat overshadowed by the gorgeousness of her attendant maids. She may have them handcuffed together with floral links, she may have them bound with chains of roses which shall fall asunder as she falters forth her solemn vow to love, honor and obey, or she may have them ready to strew flowers in her path as she turns, a newly made wife, from the altar; but in all these picturesque fashions and quaint ideas, she detracts from the interest which should center round herself alone, and instead of one interesting and beautiful figure—for who ever thinks of the groom?—there comes a group of lovely maidens, a galaxy of beauty in which each star is of equal brilliancy. It can hardly be gainsaid that in their picturesque array the bridesmaids are fast stealing the honors from the bride, who must confine herself to the regulation snowy garments of silk, satin and tulle, while her maids brighten and beautify the wedding pageant with sweet artistic fantasies and rapsodies in raiment. So long as they are thus attired the truth of the old adage that "Every wedding makes another," is quite sure to be proved; and the charming maid, in addition to her gifts of pin and locket and bangle and buckle, may count among her trophies a captured heart.—Boston Herald.

The Rustless Process for Kettles.

The rustless process, which has been until lately an experiment, has now demonstrated that great economy can be used, not only in iron pipes, but in every article where iron is used. Over 2,000,000 kettles have been subjected to this process in Pittsburg. The method is very peculiar. After the article is made it is put into a furnace made in an oval shape, air tight. After the iron has attained almost a white heat, the air that comes through the regenerators and air valves is shut securely off, and the furnace is made air tight. After the air has been shut off the superheater, which is located in the combination chamber at the rear of the furnace, and at right angles from the air valves, is opened, and the furnace is filled with steam and kept in that condition for eight hours. At short intervals a small valve is opened, so as to allow the exodus of steam in the furnace, allowing fresh steam to be put into it. When the articles have been about ten hours in the furnace there has been accomplished the formation of magnetic oxide upon the iron surface. They are then put into an acid well, which is the last treatment.—Exchange.

Anecdote of Rubinstein.

La Starina, a Russian paper, tells how in Rubinstein's earlier days he narrowly escaped being sent to Siberia. He played before the Czar Nicholas in the house of Count Wielhorsky, and on returning home lost his passport. A day or two afterwards he was arrested and brought before Gen. Galahoff, then chief of police, who informed the prisoner that he declined to believe anybody's evidence of his identity, even that of the count. Rubinstein persisted that he was a mere musician, and as one of the subordinate police officers knew something about music the two were sent to try matters over on a dilapidated piano. The test proved satisfactory, and the general, remarking that "the prisoner was apparently a musician," gave him a permit for three weeks.

The Demand for Cut Glass.

The popularity of cut glass for table decoration is not a fad, but a growing taste, the outcome of its increased beauty in manufacture and design.

When you see a fashionable woman peering over the cut glass counter, inquiring for something in Parisian or Henrietta or discussing the merits of "strawberry," "fan" or "diamond," you may know she is after American glass and prefers a particular cut.

While the inexperienced shopper sees little difference in the similarly shaped and decorated wares, it is yet true that a man in Pennsylvania is rich as a king because he had the wit to take out a patent on one peculiarly cut figure.—Washington Critic.

Rube's Obituary Notice.

Ten o'clock in the building of the big city paper. The electric lights are burning and the whirl of presses and click of types make a busy scene. Editors, reporters, proofreaders are busy preparing the day's doings for the morrow.

The door of the chief's office is pushed carelessly open, and a blue eyed, flaxen haired maiden of six summers and as many winters enters. Nobody saw her climb the stairs or walk through the hall. She is ragged, dirty and has been crying.

"Is you the editor man?"

"Yes, little one; what can I do for you?"

"Rube is dead, an' I thought maybe you'd like to tell about it."

"Who is Rube?"

"Why, didn't you ever hear of Rube?"

"You see, there are so many people that I can't know them all."

The big, bearded man was actually ashamed of his ignorance.

"But Rube wasn't people—he was my brother. He sold papers an' blacked boots and all that. He wasn't very rich, an' me said the city man would bury him—but he was good to me."

"Do you sell papers, too?"

"No, I stayed home, but Rube brought me candy dogs an' candy roosters, and licked bad boys that made me cry. An' if you'd tell folks how good he was, maybe they'd think better of him."

"What do you want me to say, little one?"

"Why, that he was 12 years old an' was helpin' mother an'—oh, I don't know—but 'member he was always good ter me."

Before the little mourner left the office she was the recipient of a handful of coins donated by "the boys" of the office, and the big editor ordered the janitor to accompany her home.

Thus it happened that the readers of the great paper were mildly astonished to read on the morning's local page:

DIED—Yesterday, Rube, the newsboy, aged 12 years. He was the support of his widowed mother, and loved his little sister better than life almost. He was buried in the potter's field last night.

—Detroit Free Press.

Omens in a Loaf of Bread.

Among beliefs current with sailors is the notion that it is unlucky to turn a loaf upside down after helping one's self from it; the idea being that for every loaf so turned a ship will be wrecked. It is also said that if a loaf parts in the hand while being cut it bodes dissension in the family—the separation of husband and wife. Again, it has been a widespread belief that the whereabouts of a drowned body may be ascertained by floating a loaf of bread down stream, when it will stop over the spot where the body is. A curious account of a body thus recovered near Hull, England, appeared some years back in The Gentleman's Magazine: After diligent search had been made in the river for the child, to no purpose, a two-penny loaf, with a quantity of quicksilver in it, was set floating from the place where the child was supposed to have fallen in, which steered its way down river upward of half a mile, when the body happening to lie on the contrary side of the river, the loaf suddenly tacked about and swam across the river, and gradually sank near the child, when both the child and the loaf were brought up with grappiers ready for the purpose.

A correspondent of Notes and Queries maintains that it is a scientific fact that a loaf and quicksilver indicates the position of the body, as the weighted loaf is carried by the current just as the body is. This practice, too, prevails on the continent, and in Germany the name of the drowned person is inscribed on the piece of bread; while in France loaves consecrated to St. Nicholas, with lighted wax tapers in them, have generally been employed for that purpose.—Waverley Magazine.

Exercise for Chest Development.

Exercises of strength lead rapidly to an increase in the size of the thorax. It is the same with exercises of speed when they need very energetic movements. No exercise develops the chest as rapidly as does running, unless it be wrestling.

Mountaineers all have large chests, and the Indians who live on the high plateaus of the Cordillera in the Andes have been noted for the extraordinary size of their chests. This great development in mountaineers is due to two causes, which act in the same direction: frequent ascent of steep inclines, and constant residence at great heights at which the air is rarefied. The climbing of these slopes needs a great quantity of work, which causes increase of the respiratory need; respiration in a rarefied atmosphere obliges a man to take deeper breaths in order to supplement, by the quantity of air breathed, the insufficiency of its vivifying properties.

Singers, with no other exercise but singing, acquire great respiratory power and a remarkable increase in the dimensions of the chests.

Numerous observations prove that it is enough voluntarily to take a certain number of deep breaths every day, to produce, in a short time, an increase in the circumference of the chest which may amount to two or three centimeters.—Fernand Lagrange, M. D., in Popular Science Monthly.

The Murder of Gen. Prim.

After seventeen years of fruitless investigation, there is every reason to believe that one of the murderers of Gen. Prim has been discovered. A native of Madrid named Ramon Martinez y Pedragosa, who died recently in the hospital at Buenos Ayres, authorized the chaplain to publish his confession. He also told the priest that one of his accomplices was in Mexico. This news agrees with the version given in Madrid in 1874 by Signor Tamberlik, who was an intimate friend of Gen. Prim. The two chief assassins went straight to Lisbon, and thence to South America. The Duc d'Aosta has most of the papers referring to the subject, amongst other sad historical souvenirs of his brief reign.—Pall Mall Budget.

Encouraged by Sir Adolphe.

Sir Frederick Middleton addressed a letter to the people of Canada regarding his treatment at the hands of the Government and Parliament. He quotes a telegram from Sir Adolphe Caron, requesting him to bring home trophies for Sir John Macdonald, Sir Hector Langevin and Sir Adolph Caron. In an interview Sir Frederick said, "Why should people hear anything from a man whom they have treated so disgracefully? You don't care a rap for me, nor I for you."

Long Livers.

Ottawa Citizen: The United States pension list is one of the most wonderful [illegible] of this splendid country. Although the War of Independence closed about 110 years ago, the names of 35 pensioners still remain on the rolls, and they are all strong enough to draw their pensions quite regularly. Our own veterans of 1812-15 hold out pretty well, but in the last 15 years the number has decreased from over 3,000 to 42.

A FAITH CURIST

Is Troubled with a Conscience, and Wishes to Make Amends.

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Judge Bartlett, of the King's county court, rendered a decision in the action for divorce brought by Samuel Casey against his wife, Emma C., on the ground of infidelity. The couple were members of the Christian Scientists' Society, and so is the co-respondent, Geo. A. Stack, who is a manufacturer of dye stuffs and chemicals at Tompkinsville, Staten Island. [illegible] co-respondent caused quite a scandal in the society, and Judge Bartlett was greatly surprised at the appearance of the co-respondent and defendant, who appeared in court to confirm the allegation of the complainant. When the judge asked the co-respondent why he appeared in court to testify to the defendant's shame and his disgrace, he said he was a Christian man and was there to tell the truth. The plaintiff's counsel said the co-respondent was a faith curist, and that his conscience troubled him. He therefore desired to make what amends he could and do better in the future. The judge concluded that the plaintiff was entitled to a judgment of divorce, and therefore granted it.

POWDERLEY TO ARTHUR.

The Chief of the Engineers Asked to Publicly Define His Position.

Do you know there is at present a strike in progress on the New York Central? In this strike is involved a principle which you cannot afford to ignore, and this principle is that of fair play. Many of the men on strike are firemen, and belong not only to the Knights of Labor but the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen. They are manfully contending for the right to maintain their organization. They are at a standstill, and in some cases their places have been filled by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, who have stepped down from the footboards to pick up the shovels which were dropped by the firemen. Are you willing that this should continue? Are we to understand that this action is to receive the sanction of the organization you represent? The K. of L. desire to know where you stand on this question, for you are the authorized voice of the sentiment of your order. The members of the various brotherhoods of railway employees are desirous of knowing where you stand, for on your answer (and we desire it to be a public one) depends in future years our association. If your members continue to do the work of firemen, we shall know that they do it with your consent, and the future will be plain before us. We now ask for your official sanction of the strike. We only ask for fair treatment at your hands. The man who takes the place of another in this contest is untrue to the cause of organization. The organization which approves such conduct must be regarded in the same light, and we want to know from your own lips where to assign the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers in the roster of organizations. We have asked other organizations of railroad employes to take sides with us. They are responding nobly, and the future of labor seems to indicate that between us all there will be a far better understanding than now, but your voice must be heard, either on the side of the railroad or the men. Which will it be? I remain respectfully yours.

(Signed) T. V. POWDERLY.

THE NEW GAS GUN.

Trial of the Marvelous Rifle Invented by M. Giffard.

At the headquarters of the London Scottish Rifles lately some interesting experiments were conducted with M. Paul Giffard's appliance for the employment of liquified gas as an explosive—or, to be more strictly accurate, one should say as a means of propelling projectiles—in place of gunpowder. M. Paul Giffard's scientific reputation as inventor of the pneumatic tube, and of the "Giffard injector," so largely used in connection with steam power, stands so high that any invention to which his name was attached would be worthy of attentive consideration.

The weapon now introduced by him, however, is something more than an ingenious appliance; it is a discovery which promises not only to revolutionize the gunmaker's art but is applicable also to many other purposes as a motive power. Those who are interested in the Giffard gun claim that it is the military weapon of the future. The idea of using liquified carbonic acid gas as a propulsive power is not new, but M. Giffard is the first who has turned it to practical account.

The gas gun is a model of simplicity, so far as one can judge without examination of the discharging mechanism, in which much of the merit of Mr. Giffard's invention lies. A small cylinder, called a cartouche, is attached to the barrel of a rifle or smooth-bore gun. This cylinder contains liquid gas enough to discharge 220 shots, equal to about 50 bullets of an ordinary service rifle, with a velocity sufficient to kill at 600 yards. There is no other explosive. The pellet is simply dropped into an aperture of the barrel, which is hermetically closed by pressing a small lever, and the loading is complete. When the trigger is pressed a small quantity of liquified gas becomes released and expands in the breech chamber. There is no louder report than the drawing of a champagne cork makes; no smoke, and no fouling of the barrel. In all these respects M. Giffard's gas gun seems to fulfill the requirements of an ideal weapon for warfare; but whether in other respects liquified gas has advantages over ordinary explosives for military purposes remains to be proved. The inventor says there would be no difficulty in refilling the cylinders with gas on the battle field, but it is obvious, even if that be the case, that reserve cylinders would have to be supplied to each man in order to make up the number of rounds now thought to be necessary; and as bullets would of necessity be carried in addition the ammunition for a gas gun would weigh just as much as ordinary cartridges, weight for weight.—London Daily News.

THE DEADLY "DREI."

A Vegetable Slow Poison, Known only to the Gipsies.

Among other secrets of the gipsy race is the art of preparing what they term the "drei," or "dri," a most deadly and insidiously destructive agent, for which medical science knows no antidote. Analysis detects no noxious properties whatever, and the most careful examination, microscopical or otherwise, shows it simply of apparently harmless vegetable matter. The "drei," then, is [illegible] a certain species of fungus forming the nearest connecting link between the animal and vegetable kingdoms, the powder consisting of an infinity of sporules. These fungoid sporules possess the peculiar property of being further developed only by intimate contact with living animal matter (as when swallowed, etc.) They then throw out innumerable greenish-yellow fibres, about 18 inches in length. When the "drei" is administered, usually in some warm drink, these sporules attach themselves to the mucuous membrane, germinate, and throw out millions of these silky fibers, which grow with fearful rapidity, first producing symptoms of hectic fever, then cough, and eventually being accompanied by incessant spitting of blood till death finally supervenes, usually in about a fortnight or three weeks' time. A case of this description occurred in Italy in 1860. Although the patient was attended by eminent physicians accustomed to deal with cases of slow poisoning, no suspicions of foul play were entertained till the day after the decease, when an autopsy revealed the cause of death. The fibres, the growth of which had ceased with the cessation of animal life, and the heat that supported them, were already partially decomposed; had another day or two elapsed, no trace would have been left of the foul deed. If the analysis of the mixture in question reveals no deleterious drug, let a dog or some other animal be daily dosed with three drops in some warm vehicle. The result would show whether the brown is or is not the world famous and destructive "drei." I have culled this information from doctors and patients, by John Timbs.

Labouchereisms.

The German papers which had begun to revile Prince Bismarck have ceased their invectives against him since he threatened to publish a list of the writers who were formerly in his pay, with full particulars respecting the money which he gave them. Prince Bismarck has recently described the journalists of Germany as "cowards without principle or dignity."

Under the new regulations which the present Pope has established, after years of delay, owing to the obstructive disposition towards any reform of the slumberous officials, the Vatican Library is now freely accessible to properly introduced visitors, which is a great boon to scholars and men of letters. This library contains 50,000 printed books and 25,000 manuscripts, the latter being principally Greek, Latin and Oriental. The collection of manuscripts is one of the most valuable in the world.

It is stated, I see, that the Battalion of the Guards sent to Bermuda is to be brought back to England next spring. Why should the British taxpayer be fined for the insubordination of the Battalion? Having been sent to Bermuda the Battalion should remain there as long as a regiment of the line would have remained.

"I am told that three of the officers of the Battalion have been excused from accompanying it, because their wives are likely to increase their families. If this be so, has the same leave been granted to the soldiers of the Battalion who wives are in a similar condition?

One of the most grievous hardships resulting from the present senseless and merciless method of maintaining military discipline is the practical uselessness of appeals from court martial sentences as they now exist. I take the following remarks on the subject from an excellent article on "Insubordination" in a Woolwich paper.—Tommy's appeal is after he has completed his punishment, not before he does it. Hundreds of instances have occurred where, after doing terms of imprisonment, court-martials have been quashed. The only satisfaction this affords is pay and service lost by sentence restored, and the red-ink pen run through the entry in the defaulter's sheet, but all the power of officialism will not restore the man the days of liberty lost to him.

Won By Hard Work.

Mr. T. C. Doidge, of 372 Wellesley street, Toronto, a fourth-year undergraduate of Toronto University, won The Canadian Queen's "Free Trip to Europe" by making over eleven hundred words from letters contained in the name of that magazine. Mr. Doidge worked over seventy hours to accomplish the task. He sails by the Parisian, September 3rd, and will be abroad three months. The publishers of The Queen will soon announce another "Free Trip to Europe" word contest, with $200 for expenses.

CARDINAL NEWMAN'S SCEPTICISM.

"It is not a little remarkable," says the Toronto Globe in an editorial sketch of Cardinal NEWMAN, "that the great polemist should have been charged in his later years with sceptical leanings." Of course no one has ever supposed that Cardinal NEWMAN was a sceptic at heart, but merely that his intellect was of a destructive turn and that he rushed into the arms of a church which professes to be infallibly guided to escape from the logic which was driving him towards negation. In the opening of the general answer to Mr. KINGSLEY in the Apologia, NEWMAN admits that it is hard to state the argument for a God, but that a contemplation of the world would lead to "atheism, pantheism or polytheism" were it not for the divine voice which is uttered through the conscience. His view of the world and of human life is thus marvellously expressed:

"To consider the world in its length and breadth, its various history, the many races of men, their starts, their fortunes, their mutual alienation, their conflicts; and then their ways, habits, governments, forms of worship, their enterprises, their aimless courses, their random achievements and requirements, the impotent conclusion of long-standing facts, the tokens so faint and broken of a superintending design, the blind evolution of what turn out to be great powers or truths; the progress of things, as if from unreasoning elements not towards final causes; the greatness and littleness of man, his far-reaching aims, his short duration, the curtain hung over his futurity, the disappointments of life, the defeat of good, the success of evil, physical pain, mental anguish, the prevalence and intensity of sin, the pervading idolatries, the corruptions, the dreary, hopeless irreligion; that condition of the whole race so fearfully yet exactly described in the Apostle's words, 'Having no hope and without God in the world'—all this is a vision to dizzy and appal; and inflicts upon the mind the sense of a profound mystery, which is absolutely beyond human solution. . . . . . . Were it not for the voice speaking so clearly in my conscience, and my heart, I should be an athiest, or a panthiest, or a polytheist, when I looked into the world."

He is forced, he says, to conclude either that there is no Creator or that He has disowned His creatures. But his true informant, his burdened conscience, gives him at once the true answer. It pronounces without misgiving that God exists and that man is alienated from him; thus it solves the world's mystery and sees in it only a confirmation of its own original teaching. In his other writings, discussing the probability of divine revelation to outcast man, he says: You do not know, you only conclude that there is a God; you see Him not, you do but hear Him; in every part of creation has He left traces of His presence and given glimpses of His glory; you come up to the spot, He has been there, but He is gone." Hence the news of a revelation, far from suspicious, is borne in upon the heart by the strongest presumptions of reason in its behalf. From this he goes on to inquire where the revelation is most likely to be found, and of course discovers it in its completest and only genuine form in the Roman Catholic Church. "Turn away from the Catholic Church, and to whom will you go? There is nothing between it and scepticism when men exert their reason freely."

NEWMAN'S reply, continues the Globe, to the charge that his intellect was a sceptical one was never distinctly formulated, but may be gathered from his general works and from the answers he made in recent years to those who gave currency to it. With him conscience was the voice of God. Nature he said, furnishes man with three main channels for acquiring a knowledge of God, of His will and of our duties towards Him, namely, the voice of mankind as we find it expressed in history or in existing institutions, the course of the world, and, most authoritative of all, our own minds—that is to say, conscience. Conscience was to NEWMAN the internal teacher and personal guide, the aboriginal vicar of CHRIST; the voice of God within proclaiming not only that He is, but what He is. In his last exposition of what he regarded as the sphere of the reasoning faculty he said that faculty was one of illimitable range and subtlety, but reliable only conditionally, inasmuch as our senses are limited and introduce us to the external world only under the media and circumstances through which they act. Its process is a passing from an antecedent to a consequent, and according as the start so is the issue. In the province of religion, if it be under the guidance of the moral sense and of teachings which are not merely assumptions in form but certainties, it will arrive at indisputable truth, and then the house is at peace; but if it be in the hands of enemies, who are under the delusion that their arbitrary assumptions are self evident axioms, the reasoning will start from false premises and the mind will be in a state of melancholy disorder. He warns his readers in the same chapter, written five years ago, that the modern world which has enthroned the unrestrained and uncorrected reason is likely to fall into many abysses and urges each one to appeal to his own higher thoughts and conscience as to a guide in the surrounding gloom. To himself, as he says in the Apologia, the existence of a God of judgment is as certain to him as his own existence, however difficult it may be to put into logical shape the grounds which go to form that conviction. On the whole, then, though this sketch of his theory of belief is from the nature of the case full of gaps and vital omissions, NEWMAN took his stand upon the principle that whilst the unaided intellect reveals, if somewhat dimly, the existence and attributes of God, the Christian revelation makes that which is left obscure plain and is so well in harmony with the general fitness of things as to leave no room for doubt; meantime our inner monitor brings to bear a strength of persuasion which, if it cannot be defined in words, is none the less overwhelming." Nothing can be added to this beyond saying that the tendency of scepticism seems to run in the NEWMAN family. F. W. NEWMAN, the Cardinal's brother, was intended for the church, but abandoned it from conscientious motives.

Here we have a notable instance of two men, both gifted and with very equal opportunities for study, both of them highly educated, and of whose sincerity there was no shadow of a doubt, who, in their quest for truth arrived at diametrically opposite conclusions—one taking refuge in the Church of Rome and the other in atheism.

EDITORIAL MELANGE.

The recent naval manœuvres cost the Government $125,000 in the shape of accidents. Extraordinary collisions took place, either as the consequence of inefficiency on the part of the men, or faults in the construction of the vessels.

Such "breaks" as these, which more than likely are the result of faulty ship-building, make it appear that the navigation of a battle-ship or, for that matter, an armored cruiser, is no less dangerous than fighting itself. A ship that refuses to be steered is a dangerous thing to be afloat in. In a seaway a ship of this kind would be at the mercy of any old wooden craft that might chance to hover in her vicinity and throw dynamite shells aboard. The extra expense entailed by these manœuvres, however, should not form a subject for hostile criticism. If the naval authorities are enabled to ascertain at the expenditure of only $125,000 that their ships won't steer, the knowledge is cheaply bought. It is better that information of this kind should be ascertained in time of peace. After war has commenced it would be a shaky operation putting to sea in quest of the enemy in a ship that might refuse to obey her helm at a critical moment. The value of these manœuvres is this: They demonstrate either that there is rascality in the construction department of the navy, or that in figuring out the problem of flotation in proportion to length and breadth of ships somebody has blundered.

The proposition to destroy all unsold fish in the Billingsgate market, that schedule prices may be maintained, leaves no doubt in one's mind as to the alleged cold bloodedness of the operations of capital. We can quite understand that the fish combine should demur to the free distribution of surplus fish, for a class of people would take advantage of it who are quite able to pay their way. That, however, the fish combine, should seriously consider the destruction of unsold fish, without so much as inquiring whether or not the surplus left on their hands might be made to conserve some charitable end is a piece of cold bloodedness, which is a sad commentary on a Christian country. There is a fine field for missionary work in England.

The Chinese, the dispatches say, are getting rid of foreign naval officers. Having learned themselves how to navigate iron pots, they proceed to get rid of their naval instructors with promptness and dispatch. Could any one reasonably have expected less? And does any one suppose that China would not if she felt herself powerful enough, make it extremely interesting for the people who blew open her ports, and for those who maltreat her citizens, the residents of a strange land? Let no man deceive himself as to the character of the Chinese. The contempt the Chinese entertain for "Melican men," their institutions, and all is profound and irreconcilable. Some day these people who have nothing in common with the Westerns save in the matter of dollars and cents, will want more elbow room, and if they can't get it peaceably they will try force. None of us will be present when that time comes unless BROWN-SEQUARD should be able to improve on his elixir. [illegible] will shake with the tread of armies. Fanciful all this may sound, but the law of the survival of the fittest makes it almost certain that "Ah Sin" one day will attempt to establish his inalienable right to do the cooking and washing for this coast.

Respecting Mr. PLIMSOLL'S charge of cruelty in the shipment of cattle to England, Mr. CARLING'S reply is just exactly that which might have been expected. "Great care is exercised" says Mr. CARLING, "in the shipment of cattle by the St. Lawrence route. There is less mortality by this route than among animals sent from United States ports." Which shall we believe, Mr. PLIMSOLL or Mr. CARLING? One or the other grossly exaggerates. It is not hard to believe that greater care is exercised on the St. Lawrence route to prevent mortality among animals than is the case at American ports, but have we in this belief an answer to Mr. PLIMSOLL'S charge? Mr. PLIMSOLL is no crank. He knows what he is talking about. In the meantime, we may remark, that Minister CARLING'S effort to screen himself behind the excuse that the Americans are more cruel than we sounds very Robsonish. Here the Government defend their actions by pointing to BEAVEN as a precedent. A like rule obtains with Mr. CARLING—he cites the example of the Americans. We should suppose in view of "National Policy," and one thing and another, that Mr. CARLING would be the last man to look to the United States for a precedent to justify his actions.

"No fool like an old fool," as the saying goes, and in Sir EDWIN ARNOLD'S alleged infatuation for Japanese women, we have a striking exemplification of it. If it be true of the author of the "Light of Asia" that he is "clean gone" on Japanese women, it cannot be on the score of their exterior charms. A good looking Japanese female from our point of view we have never seen. Beauty, however, is only skin deep, nor is it a safe criterion of compatibility of temper. Besides, tastes differ, are, in fact, endless in their variety. If Sir EDWIN has found his affinity in Japan, he is to be congratulated. Consummations such as this are so rare that the man who finds a responsive heart under whatever guise of color or nationality may be reckoned extremely lucky. We may suppose, however, that the story of Sir EDWIN'S infatuation is greatly exaggerated.

"Some of our church authorities," says the Mail," would have stood aghast could they have heard the sentiments of the Bishop of Chester at a recent meeting of a Girls' Friendly Society with regard to dancing. The bishop favored the introduction of dancing at the recreative meetings of such societies. He said he did not think it paid in the long run to fight against dancing. In the course of his remarks he said that dancing was natural, as they might see from the young children, and was most pleasant, although it required great care. He fully allowed that the question had its difficulties and dangers, and that it was not to be rushed lightly into; but still let them deal with the matter frankly, and let them not say dances and balls were right for two or three orders of society and not for other orders as well. Common sense would prevail in the end."

CONTRADICTED.

TO THE EDITOR:—I find it stated in your paper, and repeated in many others, that an interesting contention is proceeding between Sheriff Redgrave, of Donald, and Chief McRae, of Winnipeg, over the sum of $350, a reward in the case of Gray arrested for stealing $3,000 from the United States. I beg to say that I have no contention with Chief McRae, nor has the slightest correspondence passed between him and myself upon the subject. The reward was paid to me for the arrest and recovery of the money when arrested, $2,127.80, was found upon his person and the amount of $350, a proportionate amount of the reward for recovery of money, was placed in my hands before I gave the full amount up. Gray wished to go back to the States to stand his trial and the Sheriff of Hurley, Wisconsin, Mattson received the money from Gray, and they left. Kindly insert the above in your next issue, and oblige your obedient, S. REDGRAVE.

MEETING OF CONVOCATION.

tion from a portion of the province in reference to registration and obstacles said to have been thrown in the way of Mainland graduates. He could say that no such obstacles had been placed in their way, and the matter had been fully ventilated and advertised. Speaking of sectionalism, Mr Robson hoped that it would not obtrude itself, although it was well known that the registered members of the convention from the mainland exceeded in numbers those from the island, but no much weight should not be given to this. The University was for the Province, and it was to be hoped that the question of sectionalism would not prevail. All efforts should be made to work for the good of the Province. He felt confident that if this was done the success of the University was assured. He prayed God that the rocks of sectionalism might not wreck the bark they were trying to launch. In reference to appointments which might in the future be made by the Lieut-Governer-in Council, they would be made on the grounds now taken, and no particular section of the Province would be specially considered. He then called upon those present to proceed with the work before them and closed his remarks by inviting any of those present to speak.

Rev. Mr. Fraser rose to say he was proud to be present at the convocation, and hoped that the question of sectionalism would not crop up. He cherished the idea that the appointment of the council on this line would not be difficult. He would suggest, to meet the question of nomination, that a committee be appointed which could retire and in a few moments return with three names of those to be on the council. He would make this as a motion.

Bishop Sillitoe, in speaking to the motion, spoke of the fact that every Mainland member was working for a University for the good of the province. It was but natural that each one should take a keen interest in that part of the country near him, but it could not be rightly said that the adverse criticisms in the press had been inspired by the Mainland members. He was not in favor, however, of a nomination committee, and would move in amendment that each member be allowed to nominate whom they saw fit. It was more like fair play, as committee work in these cases was often hurriedly done.

Mr. D. Robson, New Westminster, did not think it would be safe to place the power of nomination in the hands of three, as the choice of them might not be acceptable to the meeting at large.

Dr. Langis, Vancouver, also opposed the idea of a nomination committee, as the Mainland members came down to take part, and should be allowed to vote.

Rev. Mr. Fraser, in closing the debate, said there was a misapprehension in the matter. If the convocation did not approve of the nominees, others could be put forward. He made the suggestion to save time, but if the idea did not meet with favor, he would withdraw it.

This being done, Bishop Sillitoe's amendment, "that each member be allowed to nominate one or two members as councillors," was carried.

Bishop Sillitoe then asked if the Government had as yet appointed it own representatives.

The chairman replied that no one had as yet been appointed as the Government thought it better to wait.

The following gentlemen were then nominated: Bishop Sillitoe, New Westminster; Dr. I. W. Powell, Victoria; J. S. Yates, Victoria; Dr. Charles Wetham, Vancouver.

The ballot box was made ready, and ballot papers spread, the chairman pointing out that each voter could name three councillors.

Bishop Sillitoe created a hearty laugh by asking the chairman if he would answer for it that the ballot box was empty. The chairman proved it was by opening and inverting the box.

After voting was over, the scrutineers, Rev. D. Fraser and Dr. McGuigan, retired to count the ballots. Upon their return they pronounced the result as follows:

Dr. I. W. Powell	58
Bishop Sillitoe	50
Charles Whetham	45
J. S. Yates	25
Ballots cast	64

The chairman then pronounced this the end of the statutory business, but mentioned that while the several members were here, they could if they wished have the use of the building should they desire to discuss University matters.

Rev. McLaren moved that Bishop Sillitoe be chairman, as it was very desirable that a meeting of the convention be held.

This was carried and Bishop Sillitoe took the chair.

A vote of thanks to the preceding chairman, Hon. John Robson, moved by Mr. A. C. Lawson, was carried unanimously by a raising vote, and the meeting adjoured, it being 1:10 p. m. until 3 p. m.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

At three o'clock this afternoon most of the members of the convocation assembled at the Legislative rooms, and with Bishop Sillitoe in the chair, discussion on the best ways of forming tangible results with a view to the early founding of the university, ensued.

At the hour of going to press the meeting was still in session.

SPORTING NOTES.

Brief Resume of Sporting Matters Here and Elsewhere.

Yesterday the TIMES announced that the Victoria Football club would hold a field day on the 13th of September, today the programme, selected by the committee is published.

PROGRAMME.

1. Drop kick football, Victoria Football Club.
2. Hundred yards dash, open to Amateurs.
3. Broad jump, open to amateurs.
4. Two hundred and twenty yards, hurdle race, open to Victoria Football Club.
5. Throwing cricket ball, open to amateurs.
6. One hundred and ten yards race, picking up football half way, open to V. F. B. Club.
7. Quarter mile race, championship of British Columbia, open to amateurs.
8. Mile race open to non-commissioned officers and men of H. M. Army and Navy.
9. Half mile race open to V. F. B. Club.
10. Three-legged race, open to amateurs.
11. Mile race, open to amateurs.
12. Sack race, open to amateurs.
13. Tug of war, officers of Navy vs. V. F. B. Club.

Entrance fee to each event, 50 cents, except hundred yards, and quarter mile which will be $1.00.

TENNIS AT TACOMA.

The Tacoma Tennis club will hold an open tournament on its courts in Tacoma, commencing on September 3rd, 1890, in which all tennis players resident in Washington, Oregon, California, and British Columbia are cordially invited to participate. Prizes will be offered in men's singles and doubles, the first prize in each to be a trophy emblematic of the championship of the Pacific Northwest. The entrance fee will be one dollar for each individual in each class, and membership in any club is not necessary.

The Tacoma Tennis Club has opened new play courts this season, situated [illegible] convenient club-house thereon, and has just concluded its first annual club tournament, in which there were more than sixty entries. The club extends a cordial invitation to all tennis players for this September tournament, and will do all in its power to make the occasion interesting to all who attend. Entries may be made up to and including September 1st., with Wm. A. Rice, Secretary, Headquarters Building, Tacoma, Washington, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

WHEELMEN MEET.

The league of American Wheelmen met at Niagara on Monday. There have been big gatherings of wheelmen before this, but never such as this one. It is estimated that 5000 of the 14,000 members of the league were in attendance. This is a "meet" which is distinguished from a "meeting," in that it is given up to races and amusements.

HERE AND THERE.

A despatch from Helena, Mont., says that the first professional wrestling match under the auspices of the new Helena Athletic Club occurred on Sunday afternoon at the park. In the presence of 12,000 people Matsada Sorakichi, the Jap, middle-weight champion, and W. H. Quinn came together for $500 a side and the gate receipts in a Greco-Roman contest, best two out of three. Both men were in fine condition. Quinn weighed 185 pounds and the Jap 164. The betting was very lively, with Quinn a slight favorite. The match resulted in a win for Quinn, who put the Jap down two consecutive times.

The World Enriched.

The facilities of the present day for the production of everything that will conduce to the material welfare and comfort of mankind are almost unlimited and when Syrup of Figs was first produced the world was enriched with the only perfect laxative known, as it is the only remedy which is truly pleasing and refreshing to the taste and prompt and effectual to cleanse the system gently in the Spring time or, in fact, at any time and the better it is known the more popular it becomes.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

WELLINGTON MINERS AND CALLING OUT THE MILITIA.

How it Strikes Those at a Distance From the Scene of Operations—The Three Magistrates are to Blame—The Local Government Should Disrobe Them.

[From our own Correspondent.]

OTTAWA, Oct. Aug. 16.—The strike at the Wellington collieries and the calling out of the militia in connection with the same, are matters exciting some attention on the part of the public and the press even at this distance from the scene of the difficulties between the employers and the employed and the summoning of the militia to terrorize the workmen into the acceptance of whatever terms a monopolist may be pleased to impose upon them. In regard to the calling out of the militia some little apprehension would appear to exist in the west, judging from the dispatch of Mr. Gordon, M.P., to Sir Adolphe Caron, a little more than a week ago. Mr. Gordon sends a protest to the Minister of Militia, against what is rightfully looked upon by the miners and people generally of the Nanaimo district as a gross insult to their well known law-abiding character, evidently forgetting that the primary cause for the presence of the militia among the Wellington miners was due to the three magistrates who called them out, as the Militia Act provides that any three magistrates may call out the soldiers in aid of the civil power in case of emergency. That the militia had a right to respond to this call, providing that the names of the magistrates were submitted to the document ordering them out, goes without contradiction. But if needlessly called out, as the consensus of opinion of those who ought to know goes to show; if called out at the whim and caprice of any three magistrates, or perhaps for the sole purpose to satisfy the selfish and sordid interests of any individual, then the Government should step in and make an example of those parties who so lightly treat the commission of magistrate which has been awarded them. This is a matter calling for the urgent action of the Local Government, who have chosen the magistrates, doubtless more for the political support they have rendered their party in the past than for any peculiar fitness they possessed for the position. Indeed this is an instance which very forcibly illustrates that such was the case. At all events, it is but right that the cause of this wholly unnecessary expenditure of public money, not to speak of the wanton insult offered to a body of men legitimately uniting together for their own interests against tyranny, should be laid on the right shoulders. It ought to be known that the Provincial Government are responsible for the actions of their magistrates, since the administration of justice belongs to the Province, and that if they do not speedily disrobe these magistrates in question from an opportunity of doing anything so unwarrantable and reprehensible in the future, they approve of their action. Sir Adolphe Caron and the Militia Department at Ottawa are in no way responsible, although there is little doubt but the whole question will be ventilated in Parliament next session. Mr. Gordon, M.P., who is one of the few representatives sent here from British Columbia that has never hesitated to speak in behalf of his constituents in defiance of the monopolists, may be relied upon to see justice done to those who, while in the majority, have not the weapons working in their interests that the wealth of millionaires can array against them.

THE HEEL OF THE MONOPOLIST.

Writing at this great distance from the scene of the troubles, one is at the disadvantage of not being acquainted with all the details of the dispute between Messrs. Dunsmuir and his workmen, but on the other hand one is not in any way personally interested. It is consequently unbiased, so that the remarks I make are entirely free from prejudice. Whether well founded or otherwise there is a general belief here among independent thinkers that Mr. Dunsmuir, the millionaire, owns pretty nearly all of British Columbia, save the TIMES on the one hand and Mr. Gordon, M.P., on the other. The statement is a strong one, but so far from these quarters alone have we in the east ever heard of any opposition ever being made to the monopolies which Mr. Dunsmuir controls. Last session of Parliament Hon. Peter Mitchell very graphically portrayed the evil consequences of voting away the public domain without due hesitation and consideration. He pointed out forcibly—and everybody knows that the member for Northumberland, who represents the third party in the House, can speak with considerable force and independence—as a standing example Mr. Dunsmuir in this country of the evil of hurriedly voting away portions of the public domain. In the early hours of the morning the Dominion Parliament voted away in a few minutes the minerals in British Columbia, thus creating a gigantic monopoly from which the people have suffered ever since and from which they are likely to continue to suffer. Under these circumstances it must be gratifying to all parties, not drawing their sustenance from this combination, to see a newspaper, such as the TIMES, defending the oppressed.

LOBSTER HATCHERY.

I was informed to-day that the Hon. C. H. Tupper, minister of marine and fisheries, is now arranging to establish a lobster hatchery at Pictou, Nova Scotia. So far there is no lobster hatcheries in the Dominion, and the one in question is started in the way of an experiment. Mr. Ogden, who is now employed in the Interior Department, but who was at one time engaged in the canning of lobsters on the Atlantic coast, is likely to be placed in charge of the hatchery. It would appear that the experiment of sending lobsters from the Atlantic to the Pacific in refrigerators has been abandoned, although it was repeatedly stated on the part of the Fisheries Department last summer that it would be gone into early this year. It would also seem as if Mr. Tupper had likewise abandoned his idea of visiting the Pacific coast this season, although he assured the delegation of cannery men, who was here last fall, that he would do so, and would investigate the grivances which they laid before him.

A NEW LEADER.

The Liberal and Independent press, as well as a few Government newspapers are during the dog-days, when there is a scarcity of news, discussing who is to be the next leader of the Conservative parto once Sir John Macdonald drops off the scene. Sir John Thompson's name is freely mentioned as a successor to "Old To-morrow," although it must be a very unpalatable piece of information for Sir Hector Langevin. Once Sir Charles Tupper was got rid of and ensconced in the comfortable office of High Commissioner for Canada, the Minister of Public Works was satisfied that his chances of leading the party was then certain. Between Sir Hector and Sir John H, the latter would certainly make the best leader, but against him stands the course he pursued in the ever memorable debate on the Jesuits' Estates Act, and the reply which he put in the mouth of the Governor-General to the Equal Rights delegates who waited on His Excellency. It would be asking a little too much of the Orangemen of the Dominion to support the Minister of Justice as leader of the party.

SLABTOWN.

AN INNOCENT DUPE.

Now Undergoing a Term in the Manitoba Penitentiary.

It is currently reported that Gordon, the Wapella fire bug, now undergoing a fifteen years' sentence in the Stony Mountain penitentiary, has made an affidavit, in which he swears positively that Ions, the young Englishman sentanced to five years' imprisonment for being a companion in the crime, is innocent, and a victim of circumstances. The report has come from several sources, and is regarded as reliable. From reliable sources Ions' connection with the affair is as related below. Gordon, now in the penitentiary at Stony Mountain, burned the Cambria Hotel at Wapella. Young Ions stopped with him. No borders were kept; they seldom worked, and to all appearance had no visible means of support. On the night of the incendiary fire Gordon and Ions were playing pool at the Queen's Hotel, Wapella. Gordon was considerably under the influence of liquor. After the had played a number of games he said to Ions: "Fred, go down to the hotel and put on a fire in the billiard room stove." This was about 10:20 p.m. The citizens of Wapella were suspicious of both Gordon and Ions, and thinking that the latter might be up to some mischief, two men followed him as he left the hotel for the Cambria. They saw him enter a new building a short distance away from the Cambria hotel and get there a bundle of shavings. He returned to the hotel by a circuitous route, entered the building, put on a fire in the billiard room stove, as directed by Gordon, and then retraced his steps back to the Queen's. The citizens who were watching him had no thought of incendiarism, and also came away. In a few minutes, however, flames were issuing from the roof of the Cambria. This was Ions' connection with the burning of the Cambria hotel. Had it not been for the circuitous route which he took with the bundle of shavings it is probable that to-day he would have been a free man. Those who know most about the case say Ions had no knowledge that Gordon had prepared the building for the fire which he, according to Gordon's statement, innocently lit.—Winnipeg Free Press.

One modern invention has been put to an accursed use, says an American paper, and that is the wire staples that are so generally used in fastening the signatures of magazines, and, still more to be deplored, so many books. It makes hard work in holding the book or magazine open, and often, when the margin is not ample the inner ends of the lines of print are hidden. Some persons have been sufficiently educated to the adversity of the nuisance of this appliance to refuse to buy any books put together with wire staples.

The Queen on the occasion of the opening of the Southampton Docks conferred the honor of knighthood on the Chairman of the Dock Company, Steuart Macnaghten, and public reference to his ancestry has developed a curious case of hereditary longevity. The new knight is seventy-five years old, and his grandfather was born in the reign of Charles II. To make the astounding fact seem incredible, this boy, born in 1679, was the normal Colonial of a regiment at the Battle of Boyne, nine years later. He married at the age of eighty-two, and the father of Sir Steuart was the youngest son of this extraordinary marriage. The grandfather himself lived to be 102 and the father 81. Under these auspices nobody dares to imagine what limits Sir Steuart, who is strikingly hale and well preserved man, does not propose to himself.

CATARRH AND COLD IN HEAD HOW CURED

NASAL BALM.

A certain and speedy cure for Cold in the Head and Catarrh in all its stages.

SOOTHING, CLEANSING, HEALING.

Instant Relief, Permanent Cure, Failure Impossible.

Many so-called diseases are simply symptoms of Catarrh, such as headache, partial deafness, losing sense of smell, foul breath, hawking and spitting, nausea, general feeling of debility, etc. If you are troubled with any of these or kindred symptoms, you have Catarrh, and should lose no time in procuring a bottle of NASAL BALM. Be warned in time, neglected cold in head results in Catarrh, followed by consumption and death. NASAL BALM is sold by all druggists, or will be sent, post paid, on receipt of price (50 cents and $1.00) by addressing

The Daily Times.

CITY AND PROVINCIAL.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY.

The lecture on "Animal Husbandry" which will be delivered in Philharmonic Hall on Saturday evening, the 13th September, should be largely attended by everyone interested in developing the agricultural resources of the Province.

Prof. Jas. W. Robinson, the lecturer, is the Dominion Dairy Commissioner and Professor of Dairying at the Dominion Agricultural College at Guelph. Formerly in the service of the United States Government, he has had a most extensive experience in the subject upon which he will lecture, and will no doubt advance many new and valuable ideas on the subject of dairy farming. Prof. Robinson has been lecturing in all parts of the Dominion, in the interests of the Government. His lecture here will be under the auspices of the British Columbia Agricultural Association, and a large attendance is requested. See the notice in another column.

Seattle Singed.

Seattle was again the victim of angry flames on Sunday, when two large industries were destroyed. The Raynier mill and Myers' West Seattle canneries were burnt to the ground, with a loss of $75,000. It is supposed to have been the work of incendiaries.

The Cheapest House.

Among the crowd who attend the arrival of the different steamers, there is generally a police officer. He is about the only man who does not cry out the name of the house that he represents in spite of the fact that it is cheaper then any one, viz: scukum house, $5, or one month.

Fall Clothing.

To-day there arrived the first consignment of fall goods for gentleman's clothing. They comprise a well selected stock of Scotch, French, and German goods in the latest patterns, and will be made up at reasonable figures, in a first class manner, by J. Mc. Callum, 43 Fort street.

At it Again.

The "guff" correspondent of the Seattle papers is at it again, and a recent issue of the Seattle Times contained an interview with the officers of H.M. ships in regard to the U. S. cruiser Charleston. The dispatch is dated from Victoria, and contains a lot of "rot" of how a British naval officer "blew" about how the Warspite could blow up five like the Charleston.

The Dougan Case.

The preliminary examination of this case was held before the magistrate, Mr. Edwin Johnson, on Monday, at Duncan's. Several witnesses were called for the prosecution. The defence reserved all cross-examination and defence. Mrs. Rutledge, the prisoner, was then committed to take her trial for murder. Attorney-General Davie appeared for the prosecution; Mr. S. Perry Mills for the defence. We believe the venue will be changed from Nanaimo to Victoria, so that the trial will take place in this city.

Terror of Chinatown.

The terror of Chinatown is officer Irvine of the city police, who is ever on the alert for the "cunning Chinee," and it is a saying in police circles that he is never prouder than when he has a good strong case against a heathen. He first gained this reputation when he arrested twelve Chinamen for gambling, and it is now almost a daily occurrence to see him march into the police station with a Chinaman who has failed to pay his license. Sometimes the jail yard will contain two sets of baskets belonging to Chinamen who break the law in this manner, while the owners go off to get the necessary piece of paper with the city treasurer's signature on it.

The Till Tapped.

As special officer Heron was passing the Nickel Plate saloon on Sunday morning he heard a noise in the bar-room which immediately aroused his attention. Not being able to gain an entrance he went to the residence of Thos. Garvin, the proprietor of the saloon, and with him proceeded to investigate. An arriving at the place they found that the saloon had been entered from the front door by some one who had a key to it, and about $45 was missing from the till. The miscreants, whoever they were, had left by the back entrance. Suspicion immediately rested upon two young men, Chas. Lawson and Frank Anderson, who had been seen hanging around the premises when the saloon was closed at 2 o'clock by the night bartender. The police watched the men all day Sunday and Monday until 9 o'clock last night, when they were arrested and charged with housebreaking. The case was called in the police court this morning but remanded for witnesses, and the men were given bail at $400 each and two sureties of $200 each.

CANADIAN NEWS.

Items of Interest Received by Telegraph from Different Points.

General Middleton's address to the Canadian people is receiving a great deal of attention from the French press. L'Etendard devotes a long article to the subject.

A young man named James Seymour was drowned Saturday afternoon through his boat upsetting in a squall.

A peculiar accident occurred at Toronto yesterday. A nurse girl let a perambulator, in which an infant was strapped, run off the wharf, and was nearly drowned herself through jumping after it. The infant was drowned.

Society folks are having a constant round of festivities now in which Prince George, General Sir John Ross and Admiral Watson take a conspicuous part.

At noon on Sunday connection was successfully made between the two ends of the Grand Trunk tunnel under the St. Clair river. A large augur hole bored through the remaining distance (ten feet) enabled the men working on the Canadian side to talk to the workmen on the American side.

The Winnipeg City Council and Board of Trade representatives, with Portage and Brandon delegates left for Duluth to-day as guests of the Northern Pacific.

The Queen's hotel, Sunridge, was burned to the ground yesterday, with all its contents. The guests had great difficulty in escaping. Two men, Thos. Powers and Herbert Layton, the latter, it is said, belonging to Ottawa, were burned to death, and two others were badly burned. There is said to be an insurance of $4,000 on the building.

James Craig, a workman at Windsor who lost his hand at the boiler explosion in Colchester North some time ago, says pain in the arm from which the hand was taken was almost unbearable until one day last week he told his sons to take up the hand from where it was buried and straighten it. This may seem strange but Mr. Craig says it is perfectly true.

A thunderbolt that struck the house of E. A. Buell at Clinton-on-the-Shore a few days ago, produced strange effects on the members of the household. The bolt came down the chimney and cleft it into three parts. All the family were flung senseless on the floor in the sitting room. All recovered consciousness soon, and it was found that the lightning had painted a strange bright red spot as large as a silver dollar on the cheek of Mrs. Buell, which remained there, glowing, for about twenty-four hours. Miss Almeda Buell was completely paralyzed for several minutes, and then suddenly she regained the use of her limbs. Her twin sister, Alida, was thought to be dead, but in the evening, six hours later, she recovered. It was not until three or four hours after the bolt had fallen that the house was found to be on fire, it having been ignited by the electric fluid, but none could find where the flames were lit.

Beginnings of Well-known Americans.

Henry Villard, whose ups and downs leave him a power in the Northern Pacific Railroad, earned his first money as a reporter.

Chauncey M. Depew rose to his present unique position from a law office. He was admitted to the bar in 1858.

Jay Gould, it is well known, was a surveyor and school teacher in Delaware County.

Charles Pratt, one of the Standard oil kings, was apprenticed to the machinist's trade at Watertown, Mass., when sixteen years old.

Leland Stanford, the millionaire United States Senator, was a student and general factotum in an Albany law office.

Rufus Hatch raised and sold garden sance.

Vice-President Levi P. Morton was as a boy a clerk in a village dry-goods store, and aided his father, a poor clergyman, with a goodly share of his seven-dollar-a-week salary.

Russell Sage was taught frugality in his brother's grocery store at Troy, N.Y.

Henry Clewes's early life was spent as a porter in a woollen house at $3 a week.

Thomas A. Edison was once a news boy on a Canadian railway.

Lawyer and Secretary of the Navy, Benj. F. Tracy, was a farmer's boy, and one with mighty poor prospects at that. He was born a few miles from Owego. He dropped farming and taught school daytimes, studying law nights.

Andrew Carnegie began life at the trade of an engineer. Then he drifted into telegraphy.

Erastus Wiman made his first money as a newsboy when only nine years old. Subsequently he was a reporter on the Toronto Globe.

Finally, everybody knows that the foundation for the Astor affluence was laid by a fur peddler; that the Vanderbilt millions have their origin in a vegetable garden and a country tavern, and that John D. Rockefeller, whose wealth exceeds $100,000,000, a few years ago kept a small grocery store in Cleveland.

A Hard Corner.

The age of 30 is a hard corner for a woman to turn, and 35 is still harder. She feels that she is fast leaving her youth behind her. But there is no reason why a woman should be faded and passe at 35 or even at 45. The chief cause of the early fading of American woman is found out in the fact that many of them suffer from some form of female weakness or disease which robs the face of its bloom, draws dark circles about the eyes, brings early wrinkles and sallowness, and stamps the face and figure with signs of ill-health. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure all these troubles, will bring back the lost bloom, and remove the pains and ailments which make women grow old before their time. Guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or price ($1.00) refunded.

HON. THOS. B. HUMPHREYS.

Death of the Well-Known Politician After a Long Illness.

The Hon. Thomas Basil Humphreys died at 2 o'clock this morning at the residence of Mrs. Watkins, Mears street, this city. The health of the deceased began to fail about two years ago, and although several able physicians were consulted, and a journey was made to California, in hopes that a change of air would be beneficial, it continued to grow worse. During the greater portion of the past year Mr. Humphreys has been confined to his residence, and of late, as the inevitable hour approached, he remained in bed awaiting with calm resignation the end which he clearly saw was rapidly approaching.

Hon. Thomas Basil Humphreys was probably one of the most widely known public men in British Columbia. His marvellous talent for public speaking long ago gave him a prominence on the platform and in the legislature. He was a politician by choice, and depending largely for his success on the magical influence of his voice, he, in his early political days, bended every effort to excel in the arts which captivate and the arguments that convince the multitude. As a debater he had superiors among his confreres in the local arena; as a brilliant talker he had few equals in Canada. Possessing a clear, well modulated voice, a marvellous command of language, and a comprehensive knowledge of public affairs, his influence on the platform was unquestioned. He was at his best when, facing an audience, he was spurred on by the interruptions of opponents, and while he generally "hewed to the line" according to his understanding of the question under discussion, he seldom wounded unnecessarily the feelings of those whose public conduct he assailed. His powers of oratory were admittedly of a high order, and in a wider field would have gained him a distinguished position. That he did not always succeed in retaining a seat in the legislature, or in taking a leading position in the government of the country, was due no doubt to a dislike for the restraints which such a position necessarily imposes, and to a habit—which most successful politicians would describe as unfortunate—of speaking his mind freely on all occasions. Although known as a "hard hitter," Mr. Humphreys had not a personal enemy in the Province, and his death will be regretted equally as much by those to whom he was for the time opposed politically as it will be by his immediate party associates.

The deceased was born in Liverpool, Eng., in the year 1840. When still a boy he emigrated to Australia, and from that country found his way to California, when the gold fever was attracting so many people to these western shores from all parts of the world. He came to British Columbia in 1858—the pioneer year for many of our oldest living residents—and settled at Douglas, where he served for some years in the capacity of a constable or deputy sheriff. His first appearance in politics was in 1868 when he was elected to the House for Lillooet. Those were Crown Colony days, when responsible Government had not as yet been dreamed of in the province. The "official" element being all powerful in the House, it was not surprising that the outspoken denunciations of the young member for Lillooet soon brought him into conflict with the ruling party. For a speech delivered in the old theater building on Government street, he was suspended as a member of the House, but on petition to the Queen he was soon afterwards reinstated. In this incident, public opinion in Victoria was behind him, and a handsome gold watch and chain, worn with pride ever since, which was presented to him by the people of this city, bore testimony to the fact that he had espoused the popular side when delivering the speech which had been so harshly resented by his brother legislators. Mr. Humphreys was a member of the House from 1868 to 1871, or until confederation, at which time he was a member of the Executive Council, which conferred upon him the title of "honorable" for life. In the first parliament after confederation, Mr. Humphreys was again a candidate for Lillooet, and was elected. During the term from 1872 to 1875, his colleague, Mr. A. T. Jamieson, died, and was succeeded by Mr. Wm. Saul. Messrs. Humphreys and Saul disagreeing on some local question, they mutually agreed to resign and submit the dispute to the arbitrament of the electors. Mr. Saul was defeated. At the general election of 1875 Mr. Humphreys and the late Dr. Tolmie were elected for Victoria District, and from February to July of the following year Mr. Humphreys was Minister of Finance in the Elliott Government. Subsequently, in 1878, the House was dissolved on account of a dead lock, and Mr. Humphreys was re-elected for Victoria District, his colleague being Mr. J. T. McIlmoyl. The Elliott Government, however, was defeated, and Mr. (now Hon. Justice) Walkem, was called upon to form a ministry. Mr. Humphreys joined the Walkem Government as Provincial Secretary, which position he held until August, 1882, when, at the general election of that year he was defeated. A vacancy occurring in the representation of Yale, by the death of Mr. Bennett, (1882), Mr. Humphreys became a candidate in that district, being opposed and defeated by Mr. Martin. He was again defeated in 1886 in Victoria District, and was an unsuccessful candidate at the general election for the House of Commons in 1887. In August of that year Mr. J. H. Turner having accepted the portfolio of finance, Mr. Humphreys contested the seat with him but was again defeated. For the third time in the same year Mr. Humphreys was a candidate, this time for the local house, and for Comox, where a vacancy had been caused by the resignation of Mr. A. M. Stenhouse. Here he was successful, defeating Mr. Dingwall, a former member. Mr. Humphreys sat for Comox until the dissolution in 1890. During the last session of his term he was too ill to take his seat in the House, and his failing health compelled him to retire altogether from politics. Since then the deceased has been an invalid, and recognizing that his life's work was approaching an end, he withdrew from even all participation in public affairs.

Whatever may be the verdict of the public in respect to the services of the deceased to the Province, all will agree in attributing to him an earnest desire to work for the welfare of the country. He aspired to power and influence, but when he had attained them he did not use his position for his own aggrandizement, and he died as he lived—a comparatively poor man. He was a generous friend, sympathetic and kind-hearted. His death, at an age when his undoubted talents might have been devoted to the cause of his country had his health permitted, will be deplored by all parties, and in every district in the Province, where the name of Thomas Basil Humphreys was as familiar as a "household word." His widow and family have the sympathy of all our people.

Island Mountain.

Mr. P. C. Dunlevy has received a telegram from the manager of the Island Mountain Mine, at Barkerville, which states that the mill had started crushing and that the prospects looked favorable. Mr. May says the plates look well.

Tramway Statistics.

The four original cars of the Tramway Company have run 195 days, making an average of 130 miles per day each, since the 23d of February, when the line started up. An aggregate of 101,400 miles, and carried 354,000 passengers.

New Arrivals.

Every day will be found in our city hotel registers the names of the new arrivals; but no mention will be made of the elegant lot of carpets just arrived for Hastie & Erskine. Persons furnishing will do well to see them at 62 Government street, before purchasing elsewhere. Patterns and prices are right. *

Broke his Leg.

This morning as W. Herring, porter at the Oriental Hotel, was sitting in the reading room of the hotel with his legs crossed his chair fell backwards and carried him with it. The accident proved to be a very serious one, as when Dr. Helmcken examined the leg it was found to be broken in two places. The injured man is resting easily this afternoon.

Runaway and Smash.

About half past 11 this morning a horse driven by Mr. Metcalf took fright on Fort street and dashed down that thoroughfare. At the corner of Douglas street the rig came in contact with a buggy owned by Mr. A. Hume of Cedar Hill, and overturned it, throwing Mr. Hume down and injuring him considerably. He being in a weak state of health the hurts may result seriously. Mr. Metcalf was somewhat bruised, and the vehicle badly broken.

Cannot be Surpassed

Mr. Jno. T. Pierre, merchant tailor, has received his first shipment of fall and winter goods, comprising elegant English and American coatings, suitings and trouserings. On inspection they will be welcomed by lovers of choice cloth as they far surpass any previous importation of woolens into British Columbia, and as Mr. Pierre employs none but the best workmen, his customers may depend on having their garments cut and made in a satisfactory manner. *

Trouble Below the Surface.

Definite news about the burning shaft at Wellington has not been received up to the time of this writing, nor has any reason been assigned to the trouble below the earth's surface. But the troubles of mankind in general are an old story. All the details have been known for long years, and many beneficial remedies have been tried, but none more efficient than begg's blood purifier, to be obtained of cochrane & munn, wholesalesale agents for begg's celebrated remedies.

Borne to the Grave.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jeffrey took place at 3:30 this afternoon from her late residence, Comorant street, and at 4 from the Pandora Street Methodist Church. The funeral was largely attended by the many friends of the deceased.

The funeral of the late H. H. Wootton took place at 4 p. m. from the Jubilee Hospital, and was largely attended by the many friends of the deceased. Rev. Mr. Beanlands read the service for the dead. The pall-bearers were: C. J. Leggatt, R. F. Tolmie, M. Phipps, Geo. Jay, jr., C. Hayward, jr., George Harvey, W. B. Charles and A. Anderson. The deceased had an insurance of $7,000 on his life.

Running Deer.

Last session the Provincial Legislature amended the Game Act making it illegal to hunt deer with hounds, as that manner of killing game is the most likely way to extinguish the big game on the Island. The new law has done some good, but from information received from hunters who have been camping at Prospect Lake, it appears that a party have been running deer with hounds at that place. People who ought to know also state that a great many grouse and pheasants are being shot, although the close season for these birds has not ended yet. It seems a pity that men who profess to take an interest in sports should break the laws in this way, as they were made with a view of saving the game from unnecessary slaughter.

NAUTICAL NOTES.

Steamer Walla Walla is due from San Francisco.

The steamer Rainbow left for the logging camps this morning with a full load of freight.

Capt. Smith and a gang of men are engaged in cleaning the old machinery brought down by the steamer Maude from the wreck of the Sardonyx.

The Vancouver tug Velox is at Spratt's wharf having her boiler repaired. The crown sheet of her furnace is badly buckeled, and will have to be renewed.

The tug Mystery is looking trim and neat. Capt. Benyon believes in keeping his ship clean. To-day the Mystery went to Nanaimo where she has some work towing logs.

The steamer R. P. Rithet arrived from New Westminster at 1:30 this morning, having been detained two hours by the train and in handling salmon at the canneries on the river.

The steamship Wellington goes into the dry dock at Esquimalt to be scraped, and following her will be the Costa Rica, both belonging to Messrs. R. Dunsmuir & Sons. It is much cheaper than 'Frisco, hence the preference for the dry dock at Esquimalt.

The interesting ceremony of christening a steamship and raising over her a United States flag, was performed lately at Newport. The new steamship was the San Benito, formerly the English ship Kimberly, stranded on Virginia beach two years ago. She was purchased by C. P. Huntington, and has been completely rebuilt at the Newport News ship yard.

The steam barges here on the Sound are raising the deuce with any effort of organized combines of steamboat men to keep up a uniform passenger and freight tariff. Where a year ago there was but one steam barge in the trade on the Sound, there are now five and two more new ones are nearly ready to go into active commission. These "tramps," as the united steamboatmen term them, go wherever business calls them, carry freight and oftentimes passengers, sometime for half as much as the regular liners and do a land office business all over the sound. They will bid for business from a way landing up to a seaport, and by their ability to do it cheaper than other boats more expensive to operate, get the trade.

TO-NIGHT'S CONCERT.

There will be a Large Attendance Unless all Signs Fail.

There will be a great many pretty toilets at the concert in aid of the Provincial Royal Jubilee Hospital this evening if rumor speaks correctly. The seats in the parquette have all been taken, and "everybody" with his sister, cousin and aunt will be there. The concert is in aid of a most deserving charity, and that should commend it to the public. It will be a social event of considerable interest, and that should commend it to society. A first class orchestra, some of the best vocal talent in Victoria, and the charming contralto Miss Sophie Chambers, whose voice is so highly spoken of by those who have had the pleasure of hearing her, should commend the concert to all music lovers.

The programme which comprises twelve numbers has already been published in the Times, and is a most attractive one. This is the first opportunity of hearing the excellent orchestra of H. M. S. Warspite, which will be present by kind permission of Rear-Admiral Hotham. The accompaniments will be played upon the new grand piano, made by Goodwin & Co., which has by the way, been purchased by Mr. A. G. McCandless. Every pains has been taken to make the concert an unqualified success artistically and financially, and from the present outlook the promoters of the affair have succeeded admirably in their endeavors.

An Attractive Window.

Pedestrians on Government street today were attracted by the unusual display of fine silverware in the windows of one of our leading jewelry stores. A conspicuous article displayed is a magnificent water pitcher of embossed and oxidized silver, gilt finished, resting upon an elaborate stand which also supports the goblet and bowl of similar design. An epergne of gold, silver and cut glass is also shown in the same window, the dishes being held in bands of gold upon which is an elaborate design of flowers and butterflies. Pennock & Clayton are busy opening a large consignment of new goods, some of which are superb.

Convenient Residence.

The steamer R. P. Rithet, which arrived from Westminster last night brought down another crowd of Indians who have finished their work at the canneries. The red men, as is their habit, immediately looked for a place of abode for the night at least, and some of them were successful in finding what they consider a first class residence. This residence consists of a canvas wagon top which has been lying on the H. B. Co.'s wharf for some time. The Indians commenced immediately to make things comfortable inside, and the wharf officials where a little surprised to find a small ranchine established on their property. They were allowed to remain, however, and now look as comfortable as possible.

Miss Helen R. Sinclair,

Of Ninette, Man., writes that she has used Burdock Blood Bitters for loss of appetite and headache with the greatest benefit and heartily recommends it. Her experience is shared by thousands. B. B. B. is a specific for headache. *

MINE ON FIRE.

No. 3 Shaft Burning—No Lives Lost—Flooding to be Resorted to.

A despatch received in this city this afternoon states that No. 3 shaft of the Wellington mine is on fire and will have to be flooded. There were only two men in the mine at the time, and they got out alright. The air fan is out of order, and it is not known how the fire started as no explosion occurred.

Cheap Advertising.

Some live real estate agent, who was evidently looking for cheap advertising, employed the headlight of the E. & N. locomotive for that purpose to-day. He took a large placard with the words "Des Moines lots for sale cheap" printed on it and placed it in the headlight of the locomotive where it could plainly be seen by everybody along the line.
